Project Title: Black Mirror Website

I want my site to be multiple pages. The navigation should be on the top, most likely in boxes that look like T.V. screens. There are plenty of images to fill the different pages. It just wouldn't make sense with the content to have everything on one page. The viewer needs to feel as if they are going down a technology rabbit-whole.

- Home Page/ Intro – Introduce what the show is and what it is about. Where it is shown and discussion how each episode is different.
- Production of the show – Conception of the show. How it got its title and the development of it.
- Episodes - A list of episodes. Then specifically calling out one as an example.
- Critical Response – What the critics thought of the show. The acclaim it got and the awards it received.
- Sources – the page will list the sources, including the Wikipedia article, sources for photos and other credits.
