

Mockup Review Notes

Julia Thummel

1. Good use of color to divide the sections
2. Fonts are working well, so are images. Overall, looks really nice!
3. In terms of dividing up the events, maybe divide them up by increments of millions of years at the beginning, and then as the timeline goes on expand your increments by tens of millions of years, and so on. It looks like you've already kind of started doing this.
4. Maybe address the bottom of the page on your event sub-pages- will this be a section that will appear the same on all your sub-pages, or will it vary from page to page?
5. In terms of functionality, something that might be nice to have would be a "back to top" button that sticks at the bottom of the screen as you scroll through the timeline.
6. Something else that might be nice could be some kind of navigation tool at the top of the page, like buttons that say "1 million years from now" or "10 million years from now" so that if a user wanted to jump to a specific point on the timeline, they could.
 - a. This wouldn't necessarily be in the nav bar at the top of the page, but somewhere in the header.