

HTML Review

Creative Director: Ruby Rose

Designer: Calvary Fisher

Project Title: Cosmic Latte

- Overall the site works well and is executed in a consistent aesthetic.
- We spoke about creating this as a desktop only site because hovering/transitions are integral to the design. This made sense to me.
- We talked about fixing the positions of the objects on the first page so they static when you scale them.
- We discussed considering users on multiple different browsers.
- The designer should make sure the backgrounds in “Method of Discovery” and “Naming of the Color” don’t scale away from the text.
- We talked about lightening the background color/chaning the title color in the astronomer hover page to improve legibility. We also discussed changing the circle to an ellipse to reference the earlier pages. The text also feels pretty crammed into the window, maybe give it more left and top margins or some similar solution.
- The designer should make sure the background of the source page is cosmic latte, or something done with equal intention.
