Prompt: Noma Website

Julia made my recommended edits from last class. Notably, removing the “button” look from the navigation bar and replacing it instead with a more minimalistic look of bolded letters. I think this change works well with the simple aesthetic of the rest of the webpage and allows the viewer to better focus on the rest of the site.

Overall, the website is pretty much done and I’m happy with the work Julia has done. She’s done a great job, and I honestly wouldn’t really change anything else.
